The Family Planning National Training Center for Service Delivery (NTC) would like to invite you to participate in the piloting of a new Community of Practice for male reproductive health services in January 2014.

What is a CoP and who can participate?
This Community of Practice (CoP) is an online learning community open to all Title X administrators and managers interested in expanding or improving provision of reproductive health services to male clients. The CoP provides a forum for dialogue between peers and resource sharing.

What will I get out of it?
As a participant in the pilot, you will get a sneak preview of the CoP website and new resources. The CoP includes:

- Links to new, not-yet-released resources and tools developed and tested during OPA’s Male Family Planning Research Project
- Access to experts in the field including clinic managers and administrators who have been through the process
- Opportunities to network, dialogue, and share resources with your peers about your successes and challenges

If I participate in the Pilot Group, what will I be asked to do?
During the pilot week of January 20-25, you will be asked to:

- Log onto the CoP website and create a user profile;
- Spend 15-30 minutes reviewing the site, accessing some of the available resources, and responding to a couple of prompts in the discussion forum; and
- Provide feedback to the NTC on the site’s functionality and usefulness and any improvements that could be made.

We also hope that you will continue to participate as a member of the CoP when the site is officially launched on January 29th.

If you agree to participate, you will receive technical instructions for the above tasks in mid-January.

Thank you for your consideration!
We hope you will join us in piloting this exciting new resource for Title X clinics. If you have any questions, please contact Erin Edelbrock at erin@cardeaservices.org or 206-447-9538.
